SNIPING AND BOMB-THROWING FOLLOW LULL IN ARAB RIOTS

The inauguration on April 29 of Eleazar Lopez Contreras, above, former army officer, as the new President of Venezuela marked the beginning of a new era for the South American nation which had been ruled for the past 25 years by the late Dictator, Juan Vincent Gomez.

FRENCH POWER STRIKE

Many Conflicting Reports
NEGOTIATIONS BREAK DOWN

"CHINA MAIL" SPECIAL
Paris, To-day.
The utterly conflicting reports about the development of the metal workers' strike make it very difficult to state any exact facts. For instance, there is no agreement whatever about the total number of men now idle, some estimates being lower, as low as 60,000, and others as high as 300,000. One fact is certain, however, and that is that at least eight more large factories have joined the strike, including the entire Citroen works in Paris, in addition to the Rosengard, Salmson and Fiat factories, as well as the power-works of Aedthom.

SEAMEN'S STRIKE IN AMERICA ENDED

New York, To-day.—A settlement is announced of the seamen's strike at the U.S. line and Panama-Pacific line piers, which has lasted for weeks.—Reuter.

000, and others as high as 300,000. One fact is certain, however, and that is that at least eight more large factories have joined the strike, including the entire Citroen works in Paris, in addition to the Rosengard, Salmson and Fiat factories, as well as the power-works of Aedthom.

Negotiations that were to have taken place in the Ministry of Labour yesterday afternoon between the strikers and the employers were suddenly adjourned. The reason seems to be that on Thursday the men agreed to the employers' demands that work should be resumed and the factory premises vacated, so that negotiations might go on in a normal atmosphere; but yesterday the men announced that they had decided that they would not resume work except on new conditions.—Trans-Ocean Service.

LADIES' INTERPORT HOCKEY FUND

Results Of Two Competitions

The "Beer Competition" organized by the Central British Schoolgirls' hockey team in aid of Ladies' Interport hockey funds was won by ticket No. 997, while the "Watch Competition" in aid of the same funds was won by Miss N. Moy.

The organisers are highly satisfied with the results and the Interport funds are stated to have benefited substantially.

ARGENTINA TAKES THE LEAD

DEMAND FOR LEAGUE ASSEMBLY MEETING CALLS FOR ACTION AT GENEVA

Geneva, To-day.

Argentina has requested an extraordinary meeting of the Assembly of the League of Nations in June to consider the sanctions problem and also the situation created by the annexation of Ethiopia, and the reform of the League. It is understood that the Argentinian Government sounded the other Latin-American States and is assured of their support in opposing the recognition of the Italian annexation.

London: The Ethiopian Legation states that the Negus, who is due in London on Wednesday, will be the guest of Sir Elly Kadoorie, whose house is situated in Prince's Gate, a few doors from the Legation, with which he will maintain close touch. Sir Elly Kadoorie is at present in Shanghai.—Reuter.

Gibraltar: The Negus landed from H.M.S. Capetown yesterday and was enthusiastically welcomed at the entrance to Government House by the Governor, with whom he had lunch. The Gordon Highlanders, on guard, presented arms.—Reuter's Bulletin Service.

SEQUEL TO RUMOURS

Geneva: The immediate resumption of the plenary session of the League of Nations, which was not concluded but only adjourned last autumn, has been demanded by the permanent representative of Argentina at the League of Nations, at an interview held with the Deputy Secretary-General yesterday afternoon. This step on the part of Argentina is understood to be due to rumours circulating here during the last few days, that England or France wishes to postpone the League Council session, which was arranged to take place in June.

NATIVE POLICE DISBANDED
Rome: The Abyssinian police force in Addis Ababa has now finally been dissolved by order of Marshal Graziani. The reason given for this action is that the behaviour of the police force during the recent plundering in the capital gave little cause for confidence. The whole policing of the town is now in the hands of Carabinieri.—Trans-Ocean Service.

APPEAL TO JAPAN TO CHECK DRUG TRAFFIC

ASKED TO REDOUBLE HER EFFORTS

Geneva, To-day.

The Opium Committee passed a resolution yesterday requesting Japan to "redouble her efforts and take such action as may be necessary to apply to all persons under Japanese jurisdiction, wherever they may be, who engage in illicit traffic or the manufacture of narcotic drugs penalties which are likely to act as an effective deterrent."

The Committee based its appeal on the fact that the situation in China represents "not only a serious menace to China but also to the world, and the seriousness of the situation in China is partly due to the fact that the maximum penalties which can be imposed under Japanese law on traffickers of Japanese nationality have proved totally inadequate to serve as a deterrent and prevent illicit traffic."—Reuter.

Although the New Jersey legislature, sitting at Trenton, decided to pass back the problem of relief to the municipalities, New Jersey's "army of unemployment" still remained encamped in the assembly chamber at Trenton, threatening drastic action unless their demands for relief legislation were met. Our photograph shows some of the members of the army encamped on the State House lawn, with inset, one of the "squatters" obliging another with a shave in the assembly chamber.

THOMSON V FERRIER AT ST. ANDREW'S

CYRIL TOLLEY'S MISFORTUNE

St. Andrew's, To-day.

The Hector Thomson-Jim Ferrier Final in the British Amateur Golf Championship, which is in the nature of an Australian-Scottish affair, is expected to be very thrilling, with the odds slightly in favour of the former. The match, which will be over 36 holes, will take place to-day.

A feature of yesterday's play was the performance of Alec Hill, whose putting was most spectacular. Cyril Tolley, the 1920 and 1929 holder, would have won had he not stymied himself at the 19th when he was 1 up.

U. S. COMMODITY EXCHANGE CONTROL BILL

Passed By U.S. Senate

Washington, To-day.
The Senate has passed the Commodity Exchange Control Bill, which aims at regulating trading in American commodities. Senator Smith withdrew amendments in connection with the control of cotton trading, but declared that he would continue the fight in the next session.—Reuter.

ROYAL VICTORIAN ORDER

Admission Of Ladies In Future

London, To-day.
H. M. the King has signified his intention to alter the statutes of the Royal Victorian Order, to permit the admission of ladies.—Reuter's Bulletin Service.

Ferrier beat Hill by one up in the semi-final, the scores for the first nine holes being:—
Hill: 4, 4, 4, 5, 5, 4, 4, 3, 4=37.
Ferrier: 4, 4, 4, 5, 5, 5, 4, 3, 4=38.

Ferrier generally outdrove his opponent, though there was nothing to choose between them in the short game. The Australian pulled his tee shot and was bunkered on the way to the fourth hole, where there was a hill of heather. Ferrier took three putts at the sixth and Hill finished the round 1 up.

SENSATIONAL DRIVE
Ferrier, however, squared the match at the tenth with a 5-yard putt and took the lead in sensational manner at the twelfth with a drive which finished a yard from the pin. Hill then scored a "birdie" three, but Ferrier got an "eagle" for a two. Hill squared the match at the 14th, laying his long approach dead, but he was short at the 17th, where the Australian was 1 up. Both players finished the eighteenth with an orthodox four, the scores for the second nine holes being:—
Ferrier: 3, 4, 2, 4, 5, 4, 4, 4, 4=34.
Hill: 4, 4, 4, 5, 5, 4, 4, 3, 4=37.

QUARTER-FINAL RESULTS
The following were the quarter-final results:—
Cecil Ewing beat Martin, 2 and 1.
Hector Thomson beat Gordon Peters, 2 and 1.
Alec Hill beat Cyril Tolley at the 19th.

Jim Ferrier beat Morton Dykes, 3 and 2.

BRITISH TROOPS STONED

POLICE COMPELLED TO USE LEWIS GUNS

NEWSPAPERS SUSPENDED

Jerusalem, To-day.

After two days' respite the wearing of steel helmets has been resumed by the police and troops, following a number of further incidents. A bomb exploded on Thursday night in the District Commissioner's offices at Haifa, damaging the furniture and smashing the windows. Several arrests were made.

Several bombs exploded in and around Acre. A party of British constables had a narrow escape when patrolling in a car south of Jaffa. They were suddenly fired upon from a bush, but though two bullets passed through the car no one was hit.

A party of Royal Scots Fusiliers guarding a post near Jaffa was heavily stoned. They opened fire, wounding two of their assailants.

Sniping and bomb-throwing are also prevalent at Jaffa, where the military police were compelled to use Lewis-guns to quell the disorders. A large band fired upon a military railway patrol at Raslain from both sides of the line, but fled when the troops opened fire. An Arab was severely wounded at Haifa through the explosion of a bomb which it is believed he was carrying.

A number of Jewish and Arabic newspapers have been suspended for spreading allegedly false reports.—Reuter.

Jerusalem: A big corporation has been formed to handle the lighterage and landing business at Tel Aviv. The development of the port has been hastened by the strike of workers at Jaffa, where steamers are not now calling.—Reuter's Bulletin Service.

EUPEN-MALMEDY PROBLEM

GERMAN VIEW OF SITUATION

"CHINA MAIL" SPECIAL

Brussels, To-day.

The first reports of the statements to the press of the leader of the new Rex movement, M. Degrelle, omitted certain important declarations on Eupen-Malmedy, which are now being made public by the semi-official news agency Belga.

M. Degrelle said that the Rex movement now had one German Deputy from Eupen-Malmedy in Parliament, who would make the first German speech and take the oath in German.

M. Degrelle said that one must preserve the ethnical character of Eupen-Malmedy and St. Vith, territories that had until 1919 always formed an integral part of the German Reich, but had to be ceded to Belgium in the Treaty of Versailles. If one could not do that, one would have to give Eupen-Malmedy back to Germany.—Trans-Ocean Service.

Science and clever police work tracked down the murderer of Mrs. Nancy Titterton, the New York authoress. John Fiorenza, aged 24, upholsterer's helper and ex-convict on parole, is shown, left, with Police Commissioner Lewis Valentine in the bathroom of the Titterton's exclusive apartment as he showed the police how he committed the crime.

(Above) Henry Koch, aged 10, sits with a boy pal and explains how he managed to cut the cords from his wrist after he had been snatched from his Allentown, Pennsylvania, home and notify the police in time for them to make a capture.

Gottfried Stettler, 25-year-old amateur electrician, is shown in court as he is tried for the brutal time-clock murder of Mr. and Mrs. Carl S. Barbour in Los Angeles. The pair were bludgeoned to death, then a time machine was fixed under their bed, setting it on fire some hours after the actual killing.

John Collins (right) is in gaol at Alton, Illinois, charged with the murder of Roger Johnson, aged 19 (circle), when the youth returned to Keithsburg, Illinois, after driving Mrs. Collins (left) to California. Johnson, confronted by the enraged Collins, said he had been engaged by the wife to drive her to the West Coast. The woman stayed, he returned. Collins is said by the police to have shot Johnson, declaring the youth's story to be false.

(Above) At Hickman Mills, Missouri, G-men machine-gunned their way into a road-house and captured John Langan and Clarence Sparger, notorious gangsters. A Federal agent shows the result of the little argument, in which machine-gun bullets peppered the door and walls.

(Right) Suits have found great favour this year, and in the always popular black they are seen at every occasion, indoors and outdoors. This suit has a novelty in the wide, rounded collars that set off the veiled-hat.

(Left) Two excellent poses of John Fiorenza, the upholsterer's helper, who is under arrest in connection with the bathtub murder of Mrs. Nancy Titterton, New York authoress, and who, the police say, has made a complete confession of the crime. Below is the piece of twine found near the murdered woman's body, which the police say led them to the upholsterer's shop where Fiorenza was employed.

Cinema Notes From The Theatres"CRIME AND PUNISHMENT"
—KING'S AND ALHAMBRA
THEATRES

In this Columbia production Edward Arnold plays the starring role, that of the Police Inspector. Peter Lorre is seen as Raskolnikov, the murderer.

Under the direction of Josef von Sternberg, who has innumerable hits to his credit, and who is generally considered one of Hollywood's outstanding directors, the film promises much in the way of entertainment.

The immortal story concerns itself with the causes and effects of the crime Raskolnikov commits. Having recently graduated from the University, a brilliant student, with a penchant for analysing the criminal mind, Raskolnikov finds himself and his high ideals buffeted about. He is ragged, starving. His beloved sister is about to marry an obnoxious Government official just so that he, Raskolnikov, and his mother will have money.

Believing that, with his superior mentality, he can commit the perfect crime, he murders a wretched hag of a pawnbroker and robs her. The remainder of the film shows why he fails to escape the long arm of the law, in the guise of the Marian Marsh, a young lady who has been making decided headway against the Hollywood tides, plays the leading feminine role. Others include Tala Birell, Robert Allen, Elisabeth Risdon, Douglas Dumbrell, Gene Lockhart and Mrs. Patrick Campbell.

This picture is a rollicking musical comedy with an all-star cast including Dick Powell, Ruby Keeler, Jack Oakie, Joan Blondell, Hugh Herbert, Louise Fazenda and Paul Draper.

The story, written by Robert Lord, is packed with rollicking comedy, romance and a touch of real drama. There is more of a plot than in the ordinary musical, and it concerns the efforts of Powell to straighten out the business affairs of his wealthy and eccentric uncle, as well as his love scrapes. Incidentally Dick and Miss Keeler go in for some romancing and are all tied up in a score of hilarious entanglements, which are eventually straightened out in a smashing climax.

Two mammoth and spectacular numbers were created and staged by Bobby Connolly, with scores of beautiful chorus girls. One takes place on an ocean liner, specially built for the picture, and the other in a modiste's shop, in which is presented a gorgeous fashion show.

The settings are not only unique and unusual but exceptionally beautiful, displaying new designs of glass and streamline furniture, as well as the latest modes in gowns.

Miss Keeler has a winsome, wistful personality that everyone falls in love with. She also gives an exhibition of exceptional tap dancing, particularly an interpretative dance, a love lyric without words, which she and that wizard of stage dancing, Paul Draper, do together.

"Colleen" is the latter's first film, and incidentally he was engaged specially to dance in this film.

"AH WILDERNESS"—
ORIENTAL THEATRE

Dynamic in its dramatic intensity by virtue of its sheer simplicity, the great hit of the New York Theatre Guild is brought to the screen with all its vital elements preserved, and amplified by the wider scope of the screen.

The play is a triumph for Wallace Beery, who enacts the lovable, ineffectual Uncle Sid, usually a comedian, but in several places a poignant figure in his futile romance. Lionel Barrymore revels in the role of Nat Miller.

Mickey Rooney adds comedy as the family's youngest, and Helen Flint contributes a striking characterization as Bell, the tough girl. Charles Grapewin, Frank Albertson, Edward Nugent and Bonita Granville also contribute outstanding performances.

BRIDGE NOTES

Tragedy At The Bridge Table

By Ely Culbertson

Every bridge player of experience will quail at the horror of to-day's tale. Even the most ghoulish should find sympathy for a declarer who, on a reasonably sound three no trump bid, failed to take a single trick. Particularly so, when the opening lead alone was responsible for a swing of eight tricks.

The bidding: West North East South
Pass Pass IS. 3NT
Double (final bid)

It is hard to criticise South's three no trump bid. Granted that it was aggressive, but the freak holding, and the apparent assurance of at least eight tricks, make this bid extremely tempting. Certainly, South could not anticipate a calamity and, even when doubled by West, he should not be severely censured for sticking to his guns.

The villain of the plot was West, who failed to open his partner's bid-suit. Instead, feeling that South was prepared for a spade opening, he "crossed" him by leading the jack of hearts. East played the ace, and led the spade queen through. West's ace smothered the king and a spade was returned. After running his six spades, East shifted to the club queen, and the carnage continued. West merrily ran his five clubs and, on the last card, poor South, who was completely groggy, guessed the wrong card to hold—he had to let go either the heart king or the diamond ace.

And, to cap the climax, while the 2,600 point penalty was being entered, West observed suavely: "Too bad we don't get credit for a grand slam!"

An observation that should have been punished with boiling oil!

"STRIKE ME PINK"—
MAJESTIC THEATRE

This lavish $1,500,000 production, featuring Ethel Merman, Sally Eilers, Parkyakarkus and William Frawley and a glorious new array of Goldwyn Girls, casts Eddie Cantor as a timid little college tutor whose secret passion for a glamorous night club singer, in the person of Miss Merman, moves him to take a correspondence course in personal magnetism, entitled "Man or Mouse, What Are You?"

Then he inherits the management of a huge amusement park and becomes involved with a gang of slot-machine racketeers who have put every previous manager "on the spot."

Highlights of the musical are a thrilling, laugh-loaded comedy chase on a Giant Roller Coaster and a wild balloon ascent, with Eddie and Parkyakarkus in the basket and the gangsters at the controls.

"SO RED THE ROSE"—STAR

"So Red the Rose" is an adaptation of Stark Young's novel of the same name which, for nearly a year now has remained high on the best-seller list.

Margaret Sullivan, recently seen in "The Good Fairy" and "Only Yesterday," plays the leading role. Randolph Scott is her leading man, and others important cast are Walter Connolly, Janet Beecher, Elizabeth Patterson, Harry Ellerbe and Dickie Moore. "So Red the Rose" was adapted to the screen by Lawrence Stallings and Edwin Justus Mayer.

NEW BUSINESS MAGAZINE

"Commercial Journal"

Issued

The first number of a new business magazine in Hong Kong has just been issued. It is known as the "Commercial Journal," and is published by the Polytechnic Commercial School.

It contains a number of interesting articles, published both in Chinese and English, dealing with the trade and commerce of the Colony, as well as with business matters of all kinds. Students of commercial relations will find it very interesting and informative, and its low cost, 20 cents a copy, will no doubt secure for it a large circulation.

COLONY'S AQUATIC TEAM TO MEET FILIPINOS SELECTED

CRAIGENGOWER BID IN "D" DIVISION

ZIMMERN AND PERRY TOO GOOD FOR GRADE

K.C.C. BEATEN AT VALLEY

(By "Base-Line")

CRAIGENGOWER, who should do well in the "D" Division of the Lawn Tennis League providing they can field yesterday's team throughout the season, opened their fixtures with a comparatively easy win over the K.C.C. by 5½ sets to 3½ at the Valley yesterday.

What struck me as very noticeable was the appearance of such players as E. Zimmern and A. E. Perry, two well-known cricketers, in such a lowly division. Zimmern would be appreciated by many "B" teams, while Perry should obviously have been included in either the K.C.C. "B" or "C" (1) teams.

Zimmern, who is better equipped all round than Perry, has not had much practice recently, and I gather that this is the cause of his present humiliating position. It is a great pity, as four years ago he was a player above the average at the K.C.C. Perry, possessing little else than a very reliable forehand shot and a very sound idea of court-craft, was continually out-positioning his opponents with apparently the greatest of ease.

RESULTS AT A GLANCE

POLICE	6½	I.R.C.	2½
C.C.C.	5½	K.C.C.	3½

LISTLESS PLAY AT VALLEY

I.R.C. BEATEN BY POLICE

SMITH OUTSTANDING PLAYER

The Police Recreation Club enjoyed a comfortable win over the Indian R.C. by 6½ sets to 2½ at the Valley yesterday in the "D" Division of the Lawn Tennis League.

It was a listless encounter, the Police players allowing their opponents to force them into a slow game, which was quite obviously foreign to them.

Hussain Brothers In Fine Fettle

ARMY HAVE ONE GOOD PAIR

The Kowloon Indians' Tennis Club opened their season in the "D" Division of the Lawn Tennis League with a narrow win over the Army Tennis Club by the odd set in nine.

Jahan Dad, one of the veterans of the Club, was partnered by A. P. Souza, a comparative newcomer to the game, and they lost all three of their sets.

The brothers S. A. and S. S. Hussain were much too good for the opposition and won all their sets by convincing margins, while the Khan brothers, A. and D.M., who have formed a useful partnership by playing together throughout last season, won two of their matches to give the Indians victory.

McAlinden and O'Connor were the pick of the visitors, both being hard hitters and combining well.

Scores: S. A. and S. S. Hussain (K.I.T.C.) beat O. M. S. Kingland and Sgt. Packham 6-3.

beat W. O. Imrie and Cpl. Lawrence 6-1.

NORTH AMERICAN ZONE DAVIS CUP FINAL

AMERICA'S TASK AGAINST THE AUSTRALIANS

THE more interesting stages in the Davis Cup competition have now been reached and to-day America and Australia, finalists in the North American Zone, will clash at the Germantown Cricket Club, Philadelphia for the right to meet the winners of the European Zone.

Australia, through the default of Cuba in the First Round, did not have to play a match to reach the Zone final, while America won their ties against China and Mexico without the loss of a match.

While the opposition which Mexico offered the United States was nowhere near as serious as the Americans will face at Germantown, the manner in which the Americans went through that series gave indication of their strength. In the five matches played only one set was dropped, by Bryan M. Grant to Daniel Hernandez on the opening day!

Of recent years it has been the custom to predict that the Americans would recapture the Cup, but results have failed to bear out these predictions. Just when the Americans appeared to have the players capable of wresting the Cup from France or Great Britain, the defending country's players unexpectedly held the challenge. These same conditions exist at the present time.

Three Good Players

In Budge, Allison and Van Ryn, the United States have three players who, at their very best, should be able to wage a successful campaign this season.

There is, however, one thing which should help the Americans this year, and that is the year's experience which Donald Budge has had in Davis Cup play. He showed up splendidly against

CHINESE DAVIS CUP PLAYER LOSES

French Pair Beat Kho And Miss Terwin

Paris, May 22.

Teamed with Miss Terwin, of the Netherlands, Kho Sin-ke, the Chinese Davis Cup player, yesterday lost the mixed-doubles battle in the Paris International Lawn Tennis Championship to Mme. Irbarne and Jean Borotra of France. The score was 6-0, 12-10 in favour of the French couple.

Defeated in the first set with a love score, the Chinese player and his Netherlands partner put up a fierce resistance in second, which the French team won only after a long battle which lasted for 22 spectacular games.

In the men's doubles, the following teams qualified for further participation in the tournament: Von Cramm and Klund (Germany); Perry and Austin (England); Ypetra and Pelizza (France); Martin Legay and Lesneur (France); Borotra and Marcel Bernard (France).—(Havas).

MATCH PLAYED ON CHINESE COURTS

South China Athletic Association swamped the Central British Association by 3 sets to 1 in their "D" Division Lawn Tennis League encounter yesterday at King's Park, the match being played on the Chinese courts because of the unplayable condition of the C.B.A. courts.

ISLANDERS HAVE EASY TASK

L. ROZA-PEREIRA NOT TO SWIM

COLONY TRIALS DESCRIBED

(By "Crawl")

ALTHOUGH the cream of Hong Kong's talent will be on view next Monday at the V.R.C. against the Philippines' World Olympic swimming team for the Berlin Games, the visitors will not be given very much opposition, unless perhaps in the 100 Yards Free Style and the 440 Yards Free Style, the Colony representatives for which will be Chan Chan-hing, of the C.B.C. and Wilfred Lawrence, the Colony, Interport and V.R.C. champion.

Time and elimination trials were held at the Victoria Recreation Club yesterday evening, competitors from the V.R.C., the Chinese Y.M.C.A., South China Athletic Association, the Chinese Bathing Club, Hong Kong University and the Mak Ngah Association participating, but, with the exception of Lawrence, Chan Chan-hing, who did not take part, being a certainty, and Lau Po-hei (Back-Stroke) who also did not take part, being another certainty, no swimmer of outstanding merit is likely to represent the Colony.

Lionel Roza-Pereira, who swam in the 440 Yards heat with Norman Lee (South China), won easily by about eight or 10 yards, but withdrew his name from the list of swimmers competing as he wishes to study the form of the touring Olympic team rather than swim against them.

GOLF NOTES

(By "NIBLUCK")

WITH the course playing beautifully after the recent rains the Second Round of the Summer Cup was decided over the Kowloon City course under well high perfect conditions.

A minor upset was chalked up by G. P. Murphy when he took the measure of J. D. Thomson by a two-hole margin, and W. A. Stewart arrived at the semi-final stage at the expense of T. D. Paton by 3 and 1. Shooting one under par for the last nine D. C. Wilson put "paid" to the hopeful account of C. G. Anderson by 2 and 1, after being three down at the turn. A. L. Eastman and E. O. Murphy needed to go beyond the regulation 18 before arriving at a decision. Murphy just earned the right to go up one on the 19th green.

The pairings in the semi-final are G. P. Murphy vs. W. A. Stewart and E. O. Murphy vs. D. C. Wilson, the matches to be completed on or before tomorrow.

TO-MORROW'S TWO EXCITING BASEBALL TIES

Japanese Favoured Against Canadians

VOLUNTEERS DEPLETED: EXHIBITION GAME

Two interesting Baseball League games should be witnessed at Causeway Bay to-morrow when the Japanese meet the Canadians at 9.30 a.m., and the Volunteers encounter Eastern in the second game, which will start immediately after the first is finished.

The Japanese are not making any changes in their line-up, but the Canadians will have Pearce, formerly of the Americans, at first-base, and Divett, at right-field. George, a newcomer, will also be on view at left-field. The pitching will be done by Alltree, with Williams catching, while Muir and Goldstein will be at second-base and short-stop, respectively.

Not At Strength

The Volunteers will not be able to field their best team as Hussain and Costa are leaving for Canton this evening. D. Leonard is ill with fever and it is doubtful whether he will be able to play. His absence, will be greatly felt, as he is their best batsman and the only one who can keep the team together in the field.

De Sa will take Costa's place at first-base, while Abbas will be at third, and, in the event of D. Leonard not playing, Hassan, will be brought in at short-stop.

Eastern will start with M. el Arculli as pitcher and O. el Arculli, as catcher. Kitchell, Abbas and Hamet are making their first appearance in local baseball and have so far displayed great promise.

Exhibition Game

On Monday an exhibition game will be played between the Combined Chinese teams and the Rest of the Colony and an exciting clash is anticipated. The Chinese should be able to field a very strong side if the Pui Ching players come down from Canton, but the Rest team should be able to give them a good game, especially as the Japanese have a good pitcher and catcher in Mikuni and Yasuda respectively.

BOXING EXHIBITION

The Members of the World's Olympic Boxing Team will demonstrate their fistic ability, offensive and defensive technique, etc. to the legion of eager boxing enthusiasts, fans and admirers of the manly art of self defence. This is to be their one and only appearance in the Orient, and Hong Kong will no doubt show it's hearty appreciation, much credit is due to the promoters and we feel sure this will be reflected in the attendance.

Prominent Bowler

R. F. Luz, one of the Colony's most versatile lawn bowlers, was born on September 20, 1892, and was educated at St. Joseph's College. He played cricket and football while at school and did not take up lawn bowls until 1926, two years later entering the Colony championships. He won the Open Singles in 1929 and was runner-up the next year and again in 1933! He has been capped four times for Hong Kong, taking part in the Interport matches against Shanghai in 1930, 1931, 1933 and 1935.

Lawn bowls, however, is not his only form of sport, for he plays an excellent game of billiards and has taken part in matches against Shanghai in 1924, 1925 and 1926, these games being in the nature of Interport contests between the Portuguese communities of Hong Kong and Shanghai.

Luz is one of the most successful skips for Craigengower Cricket Club, the premier League champions, and plays regularly for their "A" team in the Lawn Bowls League.

The Palestine Crisis

Mr. Julius Braunthal has an interesting article in the April issue of the Contemporary Review which goes a long way towards explaining the reasons for the communal rioting with which Palestine is now being racked. Indeed, the writer was fearful at the time of writing that the smouldering embers of the communal discord could not be prevented from bursting into flame, and in this respect his prophecy has been only too amply borne out by the recent news of serious riots in the country.

It is difficult to see how the Arabs can avoid being held mainly responsible for the trouble. The argument of the Arab Nationalists is hardly completely logical but it is cogent and appeals to all the innate conservatism of an Eastern people. Briefly it is this: It is admitted that Jewish immigration has been of service to the welfare of the whole country. But it is held to be changing Palestine from an Arab land into a Jewish one. Twenty years ago, less than 10 per cent of the population of Palestine was Jewish; 10 years ago they were about 15 per cent.; to-day they are in the neighbourhood of 30 per cent.; and the Arabs hold that if immigration continues without interruption, the Jews will rapidly amount to half the population. The Jews are Europeanising the country, and the Arab Nationalists want it to remain oriental. A spirit of Arab independence is abroad, and they do not desire that the place shall always remain under the yoke of a British or any other Mandate. Independence is the ultimate goal. The Arabs also hold that the Jews are obtaining possession of the best of the land. They argue that small-holders are being eliminated and that the Jews have obtained the "natural wealth of the country for themselves, represented mainly by the mineral regions of the Dead Sea and the water power of the Jordan. When it was represented to an Arab Nationalist that extensive reclamation and health work had been carried out in Palestine with Jewish capital, he replied: "Better a plague of malaria than a plague of Jews."

There is no gainsaying that kind of argument, unfortunately; but it appears that the Jews, on their side, have a strong case. They hold that Palestine and Trans-Jordan have still room for hundreds of thousands of people, and hundreds of thousands of Jews throughout the world have no home. They ask why a home should be denied to the Jews when they have shown their willingness and ability to open it up with their own strength. They point to the fact that since the Balfour Declaration the Jews have taken into the country more than $50,000,000 in capital. In the past year alone they have introduced more than $10,000,000—this into a country with not more than 1,200,000 inhabitants. The whole of the country has been fertilised by the rivulets in which this stream of capital has been transformed. It has certainly been to the benefit of the Jews; but it has also profited the Arabs. Other features of their case point to the value of health work, reclamation schemes, etc. introduced by the Jews to the social conditions of the country. The

OXFORD BOAT RACE

The Oxford consolation tea-party last month, it is said, quite wiped out all recollections of their latest Boat Race defeat. It was held at St. George's Hospital on the invitation of a seven-year-old boy in the ward. He said in his letter:

"We are all Oxford and we hope you will come but some of the girls are Cambridge but they don't matter. On their arrival the crew were greeted with a blackboard sketch by one of the children. It was entitled "The Oxford Boat Race."

EXPLANATION OF TO-DAYS CARTOON

Fresh Water In Salt Lake

GREAT Salt Lake, in the state of Utah, is now approximately one-third salt content, yet in the middle of the lake can be found fresh water. Antelope Island, a low mountainous peak rising out of the lake, provides fresh spring water as sweet as can be found anywhere. The island receives about 16 inches of precipitation each year in the form of snow during the winter months. As the snow melts, much of the water seeps into the soil and fractures of the rocks, later to appear as fresh water springs.

Babe Herman's Famous Double Play

THIS is one of the interesting legends about the slugging outfielder. Here it is in Babe's own words. "There were three men on base for Brooklyn, with one man out. Fewster was on first, Vance on second, and Deberry on third. Morridge was pitching for Boston. I hit a line drive off the right-field wall and Deberry scored. The ball bounced back off the right-field wall all the way to the Boston second baseman. Meanwhile, I rounded first and headed for second. Second baseman threw to shortstop covering second, and a play was made for me as I slid into the bag. Then somebody yelled to throw the ball home, and the shortstop threw. I thought Fewster was trying to score, never dreaming it was Vance. So I hit out for third. Fewster, like I did, had figured Vance would score, but Vance was afraid the outfielder would catch my liner. When I next looked up Vance was on third, and there was Fewster, and here I was—three of us all on one bag."

eight-hour day has been introduced successfully by the Jews in place of the oriental working day which lasts from sunrise to sunset.

The question of the changing ownership of the land exercises both parties to the dispute. According to the Arab reckoning, small-holders are being eliminated by Jews. The Jews retort that 88.5 per cent of the land acquired by them has been obtained from big landlords at fair prices, and only 9.5 per cent from small-holders. And they can still point to the fact that their ownership is opening up a country which had remained stagnant for generations before.

Altogether the Mandatory Government has a difficult row to hoe. They are committed to a policy, and cannot afford to change it in the face of threats and violence. They have certain obligations under the Mandate to maintain, and they must be maintained while the subversion of central authority is aimed at by rioting, shooting and arson. The authorities have shown commendable restraint hitherto in dealing with an awkward situation. It is to be hoped that the Arab leaders will be prevailed upon to call off all instigation to violent revolt, and thus create an atmosphere of calm in which both sides can discuss the important matters of policy concerned in a spirit of conciliation.

JEWISH WEDDING

Joseph — Salti

REGISTRY AND SYNAGOGUE CEREMONIES

After a Registry ceremony, which took place at 3.30 p.m. yesterday, the marriage of Mr. Ellis M. Joseph, of Joseph and Co., to Miss Fanny Salti, of Manila, was solemnised at the "Oleh Leah" Synagogue, at 4 p.m., the bridegroom's father officiating.

The bride who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. Salti, of Manila, P.I., arrived in Hong Kong last December. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Joseph of 4, Felix Villas, Hong Kong.

The Dresses

A slim-fitting white lace gown with long tight sleeved jacket was chosen by the bride. She wore a white straw picture hat trimmed with orange blossom and carried a sheaf of white gardenias and jasmine.

The bridegroom's sister, Miss Naomi Joseph, who recently returned from the wedding on Shanghai on the Empress of Canada, wore a very smart Vionnet stitched organdie coat over white crepe, by Naomi. Her white straw picture hat was trimmed with organdie flowers. She carried a white shirred organdie muff trimmed with fresh white gardenias.

The bride's mother wore a purple toned cocktail dress with grey accessories and a corsage of white gardenias.

All the flowers were provided by the Clover Flower Shop.

The bride was given away in marriage by Mr. Edward Raymond, whilst the duties of best man were undertaken by Mr. Maurice Weil.

Following the ceremony, a large party of relatives and friends gathered at the Jewish Recreation Club. On leaving, Mrs. Joseph wore a navy blue silk costume with cream lace blouse, set off with a navy blue hat.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph are leaving for Shanghai and Japan on the s.s. D'Artagnan to-day.

Your Daily Smile!

"What is the new building you have on the hill there?" asked a visitor of a farmer. "Well," replied the farmer, "if I find a tenant for it, it's a bungalow; if I don't, it's a barn."

Bill: What is meant by this statement about the City's Pulse?
Jack: Oh, it's just a reference to the policemen's beats, I expect.

Brevity may be the soul of wit, but there is something less witty than crude in the short epitaph on a tombstone which ran—Thorpe's Corpse.

MEN BEHIND THE KING THE VERY DECEPTIVE "BABE" HIS MAJESTY'S PILOT AND HIS SHADOW

(By William J. Makin)

LET me confess that the man who baffles me most in King Edward's entourage is the bland Major the Hon. Piers Legh. Meeting him for the first time you are deceived by the smooth expressionless face, the languid drawl, and the limp moustache. Known as "Babe," you are apt to think him innocent of ideas. Only in the course of getting to know him, which is not easy, do you discover that he has the most devastating brain of all. That bland mask conceals the perfect memory, a mine of information and a great imagination. The drawl of his voice masks a biting wit. The languid pose conceals a dynamically active body. He never forgets a detail. He is a shrewd judge of a man.

To sit and talk with him, listening to that languid drawl, you might get the impression that he had lived most of his life in a comfortable arm-chair. The half-closed eyes suggest he is bored. They are really assessing you with the help of a very shrewd mind. The wit or the occasional epigram slips out smoothly, almost unnoticeably. He seems to have acquired a Balfour-like detachment. Nevertheless, like all in King Edward's little Cabinet, Major the Hon. Piers Legh is a man of tact, much charm and considerable worldly knowledge. The hand that takes yours may be limp, but I know it to be strong and with velvet glove. To-day he is approaching 40, a slight but wiry individual.

It was this last tragedy which brought the King and the Earl of Dudley, who had for many years been great friends, even closer together. The King, feeling that his grief-stricken friend should have his mind distracted, asked him to accompany him on his great tour of South America. The Earl is a serious-minded young man who devotes much of his time to the study of those problems of trade and international commerce in which King Edward has shown himself so keenly interested in recent years. Throughout the South American tour, and ever since, the two have been constant companions.

"Chief Air Pilot"

Another young man who plays an important part in King Edward's new career is the aviator, Flight-Lieutenant Edward H. Fielden, A.F.C. Not very long ago he was appointed Chief Air Pilot and an Extra Equerry to King Edward, although for some seven years he has been personal pilot to His Majesty, accompanying him all over England and on trips abroad.

When I last talked with him over a glass of sherry—the one solitary drink a day this young man permits himself—he was like most airmen, extremely modest and above all discreet. We did, however, go through the air log-book of King Edward, with its brief record of flights up and down England. But Flight-Lieutenant Fielden added little to the sparse entries in that book.

"FLYING STOCK" SHOWS ENLARGEMENT

24-PASSENGER MACHINES ORDERED FOR SPECIAL LINES

If a tube could be fastened to a typical Douglas American air transport plane and then blown so that the plane would increase proportionally to hold twice as many passengers as it now holds, 12, this process would typify the enlargement which is taking place in the "flying stock" of several American airlines.

Recently the first of the new larger 24-passenger planes rolled out of Santa Monica, California, for delivery to American Airlines. Nineteen more will follow at the rate of about one a week. Six of these planes will be "sleepers" capable of accommodating eight recumbent persons. The remainder of the planes will accommodate 22 passengers in daytime service.

CHURCH BUILDING FUND APPEAL

$15,000 Still Needed

FOR CHRIST CHURCH AT KOWLOON TONG

To all who live in this Colony the rapid development and growth of Kowloon Tong and Kowloon City residential areas must be strikingly evident. To help towards meeting the spiritual needs of this growing district, a Sunday School was started in a private house early in 1933 with very encouraging results. In September of the same year, as an experiment, premises at No. 3, Duke Street, were rented as a Church House and to accommodate the Sunday School. The Church House was followed by the Bishop and service have been held regularly since, with increasing congregations. It is of interest to note that as far back as 1930 the Diocesan Conference predicted the necessity for Church extension in Kowloon Tong and Kowloon City, and results have proved that their opinion was correct.

Early in 1935 the whole position was carefully reviewed, and it was found that the temporary work under the charge of the Rev. N. V. Halward more than justified itself, and it was then that the decision was taken to build a permanent Church.

The Hong Kong Government offered a site on Waterloo Road, large enough to contain a church, a parish hall and a house for the priest-in-charge, and at the same time agreed to allow the sum of $50,000, originally voted in 1925, as compensation for St. Peter's, West Point, to be expended in building a church on this site.

Building Deferred

It has been decided to defer the building of the parish hall and priest's house for the time being, but building operations have already begun on the new church, to be known as Christ Church, Kowloon Tong, and it is expected that it will be opened for worship early in 1937. This church is designed on simple modern lines, with a square tower, and will be constructed in reinforced concrete; it will have seating accommodation for about 250 persons. The following is an estimate of the cost:—

Site formation for whole area, and piling for church only	$14,000.00
Construction of church	$43,000.00
Interior fittings and furnishing	$8,000.00
	$65,000.00

To supplement the $50,000 grant by the Hong Kong Government, the sum of $15,000 has to be raised. The present congregation are deeply sensible of the help already given by the people of St. John's Cathedral.

NORTH AMERICAN ZONE CUP FINAL

Mexico and if he can retain the same form against Australia, the winners of the European Zone match and the defenders, the United States should make the best showing it has made since the trophy crossed the Atlantic in 1927.

Probable Team

As Grant did not show up any too strongly against Mexico, and the Australian match is to be played on turf, on which Grant is never at his best, it is expected that Wilmer Allison, the American champion, will play in the singles with Donald Budge and team up with Van Ryn in the doubles.

The United States, however, will not have their usually easy task, especially with Adrian Quist, the new Australian champion, showing form good enough to beat Crawford on the last three occasions they have met. It should be a great match and the result doubtful until the last encounter.

Although America have a strong doubles partnership in Allison and Van Ryn, who have held the Wimbledon championship on more than one occasion, in Jack Crawford and Adrian Quist they will probably be meeting the present holders of the Wimbledon title

LESSONS AND WHAT!

THE potential 100 breaker had taken lessons from the professional and bemoaned the fact that they were unavailing. My drive is worse than ever it was, he bleated—and no wonder. Two hours of swinging under professional guidance will not guarantee a long straight drive on every occasion ad infinitum. Until the correct action is mastered so that the swing becomes natural no lasting benefit will accrue. Practice, practice and still more practice is essential to the would-be good golfer.

It is obviously true that the fundamentals of the game will be grasped more readily when explained by a professional, but to expect to cut off 20 or 30 strokes from pre-lesson scores without the attendant practice is a hopeful as expecting an ace on a par five!

OVERHEARD AT THE NINETEENTH

"We know Harry can't play and it isn't the heat, it's the stupidity." "The caddies are the only ones that get paid for holding the bag." "He scorns lessons and will not practice—he could save money by planting a clump of bushes behind a box of sand and spend three hours a day jumping from one to the other." "Has he got a swelled head! Why he cannot even talk to himself except by appointment."

Australia:—Adrian Quist, Jack Crawford and Adrian Quist, Jack Crawford and Wilmer Allison, Donald Budge and John Van Ryn and Bryan M. Grant.

OBITUARY
LORD DARLING OF LANGHAM

London, To-day.

The death has occurred of Lord Darling, the famous English judge. — Reuter.

Charles John Darling, 1st Baron Darling of Langham, was a judge of the King's Bench Division of the High Court of Justice from 1897 to 1923. He was created a Knight in 1897 and a Peer in 1924. He was called to the Bar in 1874 and became a Queen's Counsel in 1885. He represented Deptford in the Conservative interest in Parliament from 1888 to 1897.

Lord Darling published a number of books of reflections, poems and essays, of which the best known is "Scintillae Juris." His heir is his grandson, Robert Charles Henry Darling, born on May 15, 1919.

They kept within striking distance all the way to the last turn, where both failed to take advantage of the wall, and losing ground. In the final spurt Lee just beat Ozorio by a touch to clock 61 2-5 secs., which is five seconds outside Lawrence's best time. Ozorio was clocked at 61 3-5 secs.

The 200 Yards Breast-stroke event saw only two competitors start, Wong Lu-man, of the Mak Ngah Association, and the Inter-Port reserve swimmer, keeping his shoulders ahead of Fong Cheung, of the Chinese "Y", to clock the poor time of 2 mins. 51 secs., while the latter was timed at exactly 3 mins.

Shuen Ruled Out

Owing to his late arrival, Shuen Fu-shiu was paced for the 100 Yards Breast-Stroke by Stanley Lee, who swam the crawl, but his time of 80 secs. ruled him out as a candidate for the Medley Relay.

The 440 Yards drew two entrants, Lionel Roza-Pereira, the former Colony and Inter-Port champion, and Norman Lee, and the result was never in doubt. Although Roza-Pereira had a few minutes earlier swum over the same course on his own, he proved more than a match for Lee and finished with several seconds to spare. The winner's time was 5 mins. 53 3-5 secs. while Norman Lee was timed at 6 mins. 2 4-5 secs.

The following are the Selected Colony and Filipino representatives:

100 Yards Free Style—
J. Adjaluddin and J. P. Obial (P.L.); Chan Chan-hing (C.B.C.) and Norman Lee (S.C.A.A.).

200 Yards Breaststroke—
T. Ildefonso and A. Alpad (P.L.); Wong Lu-man (Mak Ngah Assoc.) and Fung Chung-yu (Chinese "Y").

100 Yards Backstroke—
N. Christiansen (P.L.); Lau Po-hei (H.K. University) and Yeung Iu-kwan (Chinese "Y").

440 Yards Free Style—
J. Adjaluddin and A. Alpad (P.L.); W. Lawrence (V.R.C.) and Norman Lee (S.C.A.A.).

Medley Relay—
N. Christiansen (Back), T. Ildefonso (Breaststroke) and T. Adjaluddin, or J. R. Obial or A. Alpad (Free style); Lau Po-hei (H.K.U.) (Back), Wong Lu-man (Mak Ngah) (Breaststroke) and Chan Chan-hing (C.B.C.) (Free style).

There will also be two events confined to members of the Victoria Recreation Club and one ladies' race.

LISTLESS PLAY AT VALLEY

Smith was the outstanding player on view, and he and Baker should have won their three sets with ease. Baker will have to put more pace behind his shots—he has height—especially at the net and in his service.

The I.R.C., curiously enough, did not have one player worthy of special mention.

Scores:
G. Carruthers and C. Pile (Police): beat M. Hassan and A. M. Rumjahn 7-5
beat A. K. Minu and S. M. Rumjahn 6-2 beat T. Ali and M. I. Razack 6-4
"S. Smith and B. G. Baker (Police): lost to Hassan and Rumjahn 2-6
lost Minu and Rumjahn 6-2
drew with Ali and Razack 6-6
H. E. Major and B. Calthorpe (Police):
beat Hassan and Rumjahn 7-5
lost to Minu and Rumjahn 3-6
beat Ali and Razack 6-4

To-day's Complete Short Story

Thirty-Five Minutes From Broadway By A. C. W. Allison

AT the fiftieth floor of the Bryant Building six passengers got on the waiting elevator. It went no higher than this floor, since it was an "Express to 30th—Local to 50th," as the sign stated. Three other passengers had been waiting inside as the six entered. The operator closed his gates.

As the car slid into its smooth descent, there was a sudden, and terrific clangor of bells. They seemed to speak strident alarm from everywhere—from far down the shaft, from each floor landing as the car sped past.

The elevator man said "Jowz!" and cut a glance back at the passengers, with uneasiness written on his usually smug face. The car seemed to gather speed in its plummet-like descent. Then suddenly there was a flash of blue electric flame. The car stopped, with a rubbery jar that lifted the passengers inches off their feet.

When they had caught their breath, they were aware that the car was jammed, stuck fast in the shaft. The elevator man dazedly shifted his control lever from left to right, to centre and back again, but without result. The car refused to budge.

"Jowz!" muttered the elevator man again. "I wonder what did that! We're stuck!"

A fat, florid, perspiring man slumped weakly into a corner of the cage and gasped for breath.

The girl who stood next to him said, "Oh, Uncle—what is it?"

Her blue eyes seemed to be filled, surprisingly, with tears, as if grief and not alarm were her governing emotion.

A young man in clerical garb, a priest evidently of the Catholic or Episcopal faith, said in a voice of firm assurance for everybody in the car: "Don't be alarmed. There's no danger. We're not going to fall!"

"No, there's not any danger," supplied the elevator man, who now was recovering his lackadaisical calm. "We're just stuck, that's all, somewhere below the 30th floor. The air tubes are fouled, looks like. Guess I was going too fast or something—safety catch grabs you when you do that. They'll have us out of this in five or ten minutes."

"And why were you going so fast?" asked the priest, not in a charming tone, but in the voice of one accustomed to demanding the truth.

"Those alarm bells, I guess, Father," replied the operator. "I nearly jumped out of my socks, forgot what I was doing. First time I've heard 'em. They're just put in the system—so many stick-ups going on, even in big office buildings like this—"

"So many—what?" inquired the priest.

"Stick-ups—hold-ups. They put in the alarm system so the police can nab the crooks in the lobby when they come down—and it automatically locks all doors on all floor landings, too, so nobody can walk down. Soon as there's a stick-up, somebody pulls the alarm jigger and the thief is trapped somewhere in the building." He pointed at the annunci-

MEDIocre LAWN BOWLS PROGRAMME

Kowloon Docks entertain the Bowling Green Club and some good bowls should be witnessed here, where the visitors are expected to take both points, while Craigengower "A" should experience no difficulty in their clash with the Police.

Upset Likely

The Indians are favoured against Kowloon Cricket Club because of ground advantage, but the latter have been playing so well, especially Hyde-Lays and Fraser's rinks, that an upset is most likely here. Talkoo are at home to the Civil Service and are expected to win.

In the Second Division the Football Club "A" team meet the Police at home and should prove the better team, while the "B" team are away to Recreio, where probably the best game in the Second Division will be witnessed. The Civil Service, Bowling Green Club and Kowloon Cricket Club should all record wins.

Thirty-Five Minutes From Broadway

"They won't get away with it this time," predicted the elevator man sternly, as if he, in his stiff and formal uniform, personified law and order. "The alarm's got 'em trapped this time. They're somewhere in this building, and the cops'll search every office on every floor, and frisk everybody that tries to get out through the lobby, to see if they've got guns or the stolen goods on them."

There were murmurs among the passengers, then a time of silence. "Civilisation!" muttered the priest. "We are reaping the harvest—for four bloody years we sowed hatred and cruelty and death and destruction. How can we blame the poor creatures of the underworld now if they flout the institutions which we ourselves, supposedly the enlightened, deliberately went out to destroy?"

An austere and scholarly passenger, who hitherto had said nothing, joined in the conversation. "That's very well put, Father," he said. "Our crime problem no doubt is an outgrowth of the normal breakdown which we called the World War. But we are not going to remove the cancer by pity for the 'poor creatures of the underworld.' If it's still a war problem, we adopt war measures—drumhead court-martials, swift and unmerciful justice, not sentimental tolerance for the criminals."

The priest sighed. "Perhaps you are right," he said sadly. "Perhaps you are right."

The elevator operator seemed to be interested in the more concrete phases of the situation. "You say you was on the first floor?" he inquired of the fat man. "Maybe you saw the gunmen—somebody suspicious looking?"

"No, we saw nothing of the sort—conference in my office—my niece and this young man, Mr. Moss—and when we came out there was no one in the corridor. We had to walk around the halls a piece to take a local elevator to the 50th floor, and then we walked to this shaft for the express. We didn't hear any noise, shooting or shouting."

"No, that's right," said the lift man. "The alarm wasn't put in till we had started down from the fiftieth floor. I guess you didn't have a chance to hear or see anything."

There was more rather desultory comment on the subject and after a while the passengers fell nervously silent. They shifted in their narrow, brass-bound confine. Fifteen minutes had passed and no help had come to end their imprisonment. Some had important business engagements and growled about them audibly. There had been sundry shouting down the shaft to which the elevator operator had replied. He explained to the passengers in technical gibberish which they could not understand, except to the extent that this express shaft accommodated only two cars, and that the car in the adjoining shaft seemed to be disabled, too, so it seemed there would be a delay before mechanics could come to rescue them.

The girl who had called the fat man Uncle, was frankly crying now.

The priest tried again to reassure her. "There's no danger, really, Miss—"

"I know there's no danger," she sobbed. "It isn't—that it's something—else—"

The young man named Moss was squeezing her hand to comfort her, but his face was drawn with stoical sorrow and his eyes seemed to say there was no hope. "It's all right, Eve," he said huskily. "Your uncle won't feel that way about it—always. He—"

"Don't you believe I won't burst out the fat man irritably. He turned to the priest as if for moral support. "They go down and get the marriage license, first," he choked, with mounting anger, "and consult me afterward! As if I, her guardian, would consent to it! Why, it's ridiculous—it's worse than that—it's outrageous. Why, he hasn't even got a job—he dabbles in 'Art,' if you please!—wastes his time around that League Studio, instead of finding work to support himself—and then he has the nerve to expect my niece to marry him!"

"You have no right to say things like that, Mr. Stokes," said the youth called Moss, quite coldly. "I have got a job—"

"Yes, a miserable little part-time pittance you get for writing show-cards or something," sneered Mr. Stokes.

"I can support myself—and my wife—without any help from you—I told you—"

"Your wife—!" cried Stokes in a gurgling paroxysm. "You dare to talk like that—I tell you I forbid it—I tell you—"

"Uncle, please," moaned the girl. "Not before all these people—"

"I don't care who hears about it," shouted the fat man, his face an apoplectic purple. "I won't have it, I tell you! I'll cut off your income, every cent—so help me—"

He stopped and clutched at his breast, as the other passengers stared at him.

The priest came closer and laid a kindly hand on his arm. "My dear Mr. Stokes," he begged, "please be cautious—please don't give way to your feelings like this. Your heart—"

Mr. Stokes nodded dumbly but gaspingly.

"We're not going to get married against his wishes," said the girl unhappily. "We told him that—not until Burt has saved up at least five thousand dollars, even if it takes—"

"Five years, ten years, perhaps," said Burt dolorously. "No, I'm not holding you to that, Eve. Grimly he reached into his inside pocket and took out a folded marriage license. "Since we've made a public pronouncement of all this, I'll do this publicly, too."

He tore the marriage license methodically into bits, while the girl sobbed, and he stuffed them through the grilled upper bars of the elevator and sent them drifting down the shaft.

The priest seemed deeply distressed. He passed an arm around Burt Moss. "A pity, my boy, such a pity," he said. "But you must not permit a sense of wounded masculine pride to distort your calm view of things. The young lady's uncle is unquestionably right. You admit it yourself, and so does she. But you must not adopt this attitude of pique and haste—you must determine to work for her, to wait for her, as long as she in her beautiful faith will wait—you must achieve for her, you must earn for her—you must earn her—"

"I love her," said Burt, and his voice broke uncontrollably. "I don't care how many people are listening—and I'm not ashamed if they hear it's tearing my heart out—I love her—but I won't make her wait for me—she can go on and marry a rich man—"

The girl threw her arms about him and clung to him.

"Father—whatever your name is—" began Mr. Stokes, who had been gathering breath for a mighty burst of cholera.

"Father Carolan," supplied the priest.

"Well, you're not helping things around here. Father Carolan—that's all I want to tell you," repeated Eve's uncle, "bringing those two young idiots together again—"

He did not finish the sentence, for the floor seemed to sink beneath him as the elevator shot sickeningly down.

The operator, turning to stare appreciatively at the small drama, complete with love interest, that was being enacted in his car, had forgotten that his control lever was pushed over to the "down" side, and manipulations elsewhere seemingly had released the car so that it went down swiftly and without warning. Nor did he remember his wits quickly enough to slow or stop it until it had dropped a sheer ten floors and the automatic device again checked—and jammed it.

This time there was genuine panic in the elevator. Eve, the only woman in the car, did not faint, but she uttered a shriek, and her uncle collapsed with a groan in his corner.

"Jowz!" shouted the elevator man. "What'd they do that for?" "Stand back—try to give him air," Father Carolan was exclaiming as he knelt beside the stricken man.

Eve, in frantic tears, took off the small jacket of her coat-suit and folded it as a pillow for her uncle's head.

asked Father Carolan anxiously. It seemed there was not. The other passengers milled about and chattered helplessly. The priest administered as best he could to the sick man, removing his collar and necktie and opening his vest and shirt.

"We won't fall any more—I'll swear to that," croaked the elevator man. "Jowz, I'm sorry that had to happen!"

Burt Moss, who seemed as deeply concerned as Eve herself over Mr. Stokes' condition, called for some sort of action.

"Isn't there an emergency door, or something, in this car?" he demanded of the operator. "Could we get out, and climb down some way?"

"Sure, there's an emergency panel," was the reply, "but you couldn't climb down—there's nothing to cling to, and we're twelve or fifteen floors to the ground. We'll have to wait till they can bring a car alongside in the next shaft."

Mr. Stokes had recovered consciousness now and was groaning heavily.

He opened his eyes and saw the priest bending over him.

"Father—I'm afraid I'm a gonner—this time," he gasped.

"Nonsense," exclaimed the priest. "Just a little shock—you'll get over it. There's no danger whatsoever." The elevator started normally that time—it just caught the man by surprise.

"You lie quiet, Mr. Stokes, and stop worrying. You'll come out of this in fine shape."

Mr. Stokes groaned again and clutched feebly at his breast.

"No—I won't get over it—this time—" he groaned. "I know the signs. I know when I'm done for, Father."

The priest continued to speak to him soothingly, but the patient would not be comforted.

"Father—" he whispered weakly, "could you—pray for me—or something? I'm not a member of any church—but I'd just like for you to administer—the last—"

The priest smiled, though not very convincingly. "You're not going to die," he said, "but prayer never hurt anyone."

He took out a crucifix and murmured words half audibly.

This seemed to comfort the sick man for a time, but soon his physical distress became more pronounced. He lay moaning and puffing with laboured breaths. He opened his eyes and glanced in pain at his niece, who stood weeping in the arms of Burt Moss.

"Father—in case anything should happen," gasped Mr. Stokes, "in case—you know—do you think there is anything I should do—to set myself—to—to—"

Father Carolan looked with kind shrewdness at the lovers. "I can see there is something that is troubling you very much, Mr. Stokes," he said gently. "It is about your niece—and this young man. I think it would comfort you greatly if you should forgive them—forget all unkind thoughts you may have harboured against them—give them your blessing—give them your permission—"

Mr. Stokes raised an arm feebly. "I—I think so, too. Kneel down here, Eve, Eve—both of you—and give me your hands."

He clasped their hands in his, and said in broken sentences: "If you'll forgive—your high-tempered—old uncle—I wish you'd go ahead—you two—get married and God bless you. And if anything happens to me—don't wait—"

Eve sobbed aloud, and leaned close to kiss him.

MEN BEHIND THE KING

He has that indefinable look of the airman—slim, sharp-featured and slightly wrinkled but keen eyes. His curly reddish-brown hair ought to have earned for him the nickname of "Ginger." Instead, everyone in the flying world calls him "Mouse" Fielden. Why, no one seems to know, but probably because his modesty and quietness are a by-word.

Only 26

He was only 26 when he was chosen to pilot the Prince of Wales. Many pilots were considered, and from their ranks young Teddy Fielden was picked. He was chosen because he had never known fear in the air; at the same time he was never known to have taken an unnecessary risk. As a "safe" pilot he has enhanced his reputation during his service with the Royal Air Force, for never once has King Edward had an accident.

Three years ago, returning from taking the Prince to France, he made a forced landing in a field near Redhill and slightly damaged the Royal aeroplane, and once or twice he has been forced down by fog. But beyond that he has a clean sheet. He and King Edward are great personal friends. Many times as Prince of Wales the King sat side by side in his aeroplane with Flight-Lieutenant Fielden, relieving him at the controls or assisting with the navigation.

King in the Air

It was "Mouse" Fielden who flew the Prince of Wales to his dying father at Sandringham. Some hours later he brought him back to London, piloting him for the first time as Edward VIII. In view of the suggestions that have been made that King Edward may be asked to discontinue his flying travels, I can only say that no one is safer in the air than the passenger who has "Mouse" Fielden for a pilot. An engaging young man, whose very quietness radiates confidence.

There are other brilliant and tactful men who will take their place in King Edward's little Cabinet. There is Bruce Ogilvy, lean, cheery, muscular and young. He likes dancing and hunting and has a laughing dark eye that promises fun. There is the discreet and diplomatic Major Alan Lascelles, formerly aide to Lord Lloyd. He now helps Sir Godfrey Thomas in secretarial work. He is a mine of information regarding Britain in the Far East.

Master Of The Horse

And one must not forget the man who has been Master of the Horse—Major Dudley Metcalfe, M.C., known for some entirely mysterious reason as "Fruity" Metcalfe to nearly every hunting and riding man in England. When King Edward is astride a horse in the field, "Fruity" Metcalfe is sure to be in the vicinity. As fellow-members of the Bath Club, they could at one time be seen together regularly playing a hard-hitting game in the squash courts.

Finally, discreetly aloof from this entourage but very much concerned with it, is Chief Inspector David Storer, of Scotland Yard's Special Branch. This is the man who has been appointed principal guardian of King Edward VIII, and it is his duty to protect the King from every untoward danger or embarrassment which may beset him in the course of his public life.

Irk Some Calling

A few years ago David Storer was teaching a class of boys, but the life of a schoolmaster grew irksome to him and he joined the police force. With an extensive knowledge of languages, he soon won for himself promotion to the coveted Special Branch. He is the "King's Shadow" in reality, and at all public ceremonies where King Edward is appearing, you will see the athletic figure of Storer with the watchful eyes of a few paces behind. Comparatively, he is a newcomer to the King's entourage, beginning his duties when the King went on that famous business tour of the Argentine.

These, then, are the men behind King Edward to-day. Upon their advice, upon their tact and wisdom, will depend to some extent the place in which King Edward VIII will stand in history. Those who know the entourage intimately have no fear of the future. They form a brilliant little Cabinet of a King who enters upon a brilliant reign.

Thirty-Five Minutes From Broadway

Eve," he admonished her. "There's not the slightest danger. We can't fall. The worst that can happen to us is that we'll be stuck here a few minutes."

Her corpulent uncle seemed to have recovered partly from the shock. He was puffing angrily now. "On the 51st floor, too!" he sputtered. "Somewhere right near my office. Can you beat that for insolence—gangsters have the nerve to go to the 51st floor of an office building and stage a hold-up—and get away with it!"

It was a matter of only a few minutes more before they were gliding smoothly to earth.

"Thirty-five minutes," said the elevator man, consulting his clock. "Only thirty-five minutes from Broadway—that's all we've been—but it seemed like three hours."

"Let us all join in a moment of silent prayer," said Father Carolan.

Mr. Stotes had recovered sufficient purchase on life, first to sit up and then to scramble, with assistance, to his feet.

"I feel better," he said gruffly. "I guess it was what that darn fool doctor calls 'false angina.' Says that's all I've got. But it didn't seem false to me!"

"We'll take the ambulance," Eve told him radiantly as they reached the lobby floor, "and go right home."

"Ambulance be jiggered," puffed her uncle, straightening his tie. "Taxi is what I want. You two infernal rascals—if you hadn't come around to my office to devil me, I'd never have been in this confounded elevator—and got the spots shocked out of me!"

The lobby was crowded, and murmurous with small clamour. For, blocking the entrance to the 30th Floor Express shaft, there was a blue-coated ring of policemen, some with pistols drawn.

Eve squealed. "Mercy! They think we're the robbers—I'd forgotten all about that!"

"Just a formality," said a brawny lieutenant. "None of you people look like the rat we're after, but we're searching everybody that comes out of this building—for guns and jewels!"

"Jewels?" snapped Mr. Stotes, who was no longer frightened but was very irascible. "Was it a jewel robbery? There's no jewel on the fifty-first floor."

"No. But there's a man up there was buying a hundred and thirty thousand dollar pearl necklace for his wife, Mr. Van Slyke. He was alone in his office and when the messenger was delivering it, this gunman stepped in and stuck 'em up—must have known all about the delivery in advance. He dropped his gun on the landing between the fifty-first floor and the fiftieth, but maybe he had two."

The lieutenant and his men were busy slapping the pockets areas on the clothing of all the male passengers as he talked. He gave Father Carolan a couple of good-humored pats.

"Don't pack a gun, do you, Father, to keep your flock in line with?" He opened a way in the crowd for the priest to depart.

"But I want to stay with—my friends," protested Father Carolan.

"They'll be along in a minute, Father. You can wait over by the door, where there's not such a mob."

The priest called back to them: "If I can be of any service, my friends—"

The crowd had closed around them again when the officer who was searching Burt Moss gave a shrill shout:

"Here they are! By heck, I knew we'd get him—and we did!" He had withdrawn from the right side pocket of Burt Moss' coat an astonishing string of pearls, which he dangled triumphantly.

Behind King Edward to-day. Upon their advice, upon their tact and wisdom, will depend to some extent the place in which King Edward VIII will stand in history. Those who know the entourage intimately have no fear of the future. They form a brilliant little Cabinet of a King who enters upon a brilliant reign.

"Burt!" Eve screamed. "Hey, hey—what's this?" snorted her uncle.

"Who put those in my pocket?" yelled Burt, scarlet with anger.

"Yeah!" drawled the lieutenant scornfully. "I just wonder. Come down from the fifty-first floor and get on the elevator at the fiftieth, didn't you? Maybe Mr. Van Slyke just gave 'em to you for a present!"

He barked at his companions. "Upstairs—three of you men go with me. 'We'll take this girl along, and this fat guy who says he has an office on the fifty-first.'"

"Why, it's utterly ridiculous!" Eve cried. "Why, he was with me in my uncle's office, all the time—we can prove that."

"Sure, we'll prove it. We're going up to have him identified right now. Get the names and addresses of these other people who were on the car, you boys—we may need 'em for witnesses."

Mr. Stotes, far from succumbing to another heart attack in this new excitement, seemed to be energized by it, and to crackle with electric defiance.

"I've got to go up to my office anyhow," he blustered. "But that's the only reason I'll go with you—you dumbbells. Why do you waste time this way? Why don't you go catch the real thief? He's getting away!"

They bundled Burt, Mr. Stotes and Eve into the elevator and it shot up without pause to the fiftieth floor. They took the local to the fifty-first.

In the offices of Mr. P. Barstow Van Slyke, the opulent person to whom the pearls were to have been delivered, they found more uniformed policemen and a group of plain-clothes men, most of them chewing cigars.

"We got him," boomed the lieutenant dramatically. "Caught him—with the pearls on him!"

"Oh, yeah?" said a detective, first-grade, who seemed to have been running things. "Somebody just phoned up that you did. Here, Mr. Van Slyke—give a look—are these the pearls?"

Mr. Van Slyke, who was tall, elderly and squarely unemotional, examined them with cool interest.

"Why yes, this is the necklace, I'm quite sure."

"And the man who stuck you and the messenger up, and cut the telephone wire and locked you in that inner office—is this the man?"

Mr. Van Slyke gazed keenly at Burt Moss, and gave a short laugh.

"Nothing like him." He wasn't a tall, blond chap like this. He was short and rather dark. He had a handkerchief over the lower half of his face. Hair sort of dark, close-cut, rather curly. I should say, I can't think of any other points I noticed."

The uniformed messenger from the jewellery store concurred with Mr. Van Slyke in this description.

The inquiring detective questioned Eve and Mr. Stotes, and called in Mr. Stotes' secretary for a confirmation of their alibi.

"Then," he barked angrily, "somebody who was on that stuck elevator—by heaven!—did you let 'em all go, Lieutenant?"

The lieutenant purred. "Why—sure. I got names and addresses. There was nobody else suspicious—except this guy. We frisked 'em all—even the priest—"

"Priest?" shouted the detective. "What was his name? Did you get his address?"

"Father Carolan," said Eve breathlessly, "and the most charming, gentle—"

"Gold-rimmed spectacles?" The detective dived for the telephone which technicians had just restored. He sputtered more questions as Burt exclaimed:

"Yes—he had gold-rimmed glasses."

"Collar that buttons in the back—that black what-you-call it the priests wear in front?"

"Yes."

Mr. Van Slyke showed a little emotion now as he broke in: "But the hold-up man didn't wear anything like that!"

The detective nodded, shouting into the phone: "Gimme Chief Sullivan. Of course he didn't," he added to Van Slyke. "He never goes on that rig till after he's pulled his stick-up—that's the way he's got away, clean, three times before this."

"Chief—it's 'Pete the Priest' again. Sure, same old stunt. Sure, we got the pearls, but we ain't got Pete. Naw."

CRICKET TOURISTS FOR MALAYA

Sir Julien Cahn To Keep Promise

NO COMMUNICATION MADE WITH COLONY

The Cricketer of May 16, states that Sir Julien Cahn is taking a team to Ceylon and Malaya next year.

In addition to the many well-known players who turn out for Sir Julien's side, he has now persuaded R. J. Crisp, the South African fast bowler, and C. S. Dempster, the new Leicestershire captain to play for his team.

No Word in Colony

"Sir Julien Cahn has not yet communicated with me and he promised he would if he intended bringing out a cricket side to Malaya," said Mr. A. K. Mackenzie, Hon. Secretary of the Hong Kong Cricket Club, yesterday morning in an exclusive interview with the China Mail.

Mr. Mackenzie stated that the possibilities of Sir Julien extending his tour to Hong Kong were remote as a financial guarantee would probably have to be made, as Sir Julien's side was bound to include several professionals who would have to be paid.

Furthermore Hong Kong itself is in no position to offer the tourists any great opposition and, if any plans did materialise, Shanghai would obviously have to send several players to the Colony so as to form a strong enough team and this would in all probability interfere with the annual Interport game.

RETIRING POLICE OFFICERS

Inspectors Dorling And Hoare

LEAVING COLONY TO-DAY

Two well-known pensioned officers of the Hong Kong Police, both recipients of the Police Silver Medal for Merit, are leaving the Colony to-day for Home by the Chitral. They are ex-Inspectors A. J. W. Dorling and F. Hoare.

Detective Inspector Arthur James William Dorling was appointed to the local Force from England on November 15, 1913, and arrived in the Colony on December 27 of the same year to take up his duties as a Police Constable. Nine years later, on July 15, 1922, he was promoted to Police Sergeant, and became Sub-inspector on October 1, 1925. For several years past, until his retirement on January 20, 1936, he was in charge of the Criminal Investigation Department, Kowloon. During his service, he was commended on no fewer than seven occasions.

Born on April 30, 1886, Inspector Hoare was appointed Police Constable on January 9, 1914, and eight years later was promoted to Crown Sergeant. In 1925, he attained the rank of Sub-inspector, and was promoted to Inspector on August 31, 1933. During the last

VISITORS TO CANTON

Nanking Officials Return

PLANS FOR NATIONAL SALVATION

(From Our Own Correspondent)

Canton, To-day.

Messrs. Yeh Tsu-tsang, Chu Min-yi and Chu Chia-hua, Nanking representatives who came to Canton to pay their last respects to the late Mr. Hu Han-min, left here on Thursday afternoon en route to Nanking.

When he first reached Canton, Mr. Yeh said he came here without a political mission, but at the railway station he admitted that he had discussed plans of national salvation with South-west leaders. Mr. Yeh is the secretary general of the standing committee of the Kuomintang Central Executive Committee.

Mr. Ku Cheng, President of the Judicial Yuan, has gone on a visit to Sun Wui County, while Mr. Sun Fo, President of the Legislative Yuan, is visiting Macau to see his mother. He is accompanied by General Hsu Hsueh-chi, Vice-President of the Control Yuan.

Both Sun and Hsu have some sort of mission here. It is said that Mr. Sun has been asked to remain in Canton longer, as being the son of Dr. Sun Yat-sen. Mr. Sun Fo has some influence in the Kuomintang.

Both Cantonese, Sun and Hsu will come back to Canton before they return to Nanking. It is believed that Mr. Sun will take a parental interest in the South-west by serving in the capital.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE LESSON SERMON

Ancient And Modern Necromancy

FIRST CHURCH OF CHRIST, SCIENTIST, HONG KONG

The subject of the Lesson Sermon in all churches of Christ, to-morrow, May 31, will be: Ancient and Modern Necromancy, alias Mesmerism and Hypnotism, Demonic.

The Golden Text will be: "They that observe lying vanities forsake their own mercy. (Jonah 2:8)"

Among others, the following citations from the Bible will be read: "And God spake all these words, saying, Thou shalt have no other gods before me. Thou shalt not make unto thee any graven image, or any likeness of anything that is in heaven above, or that is in the earth beneath, or that is in the water under the earth: Thou shalt not take the name of the Lord thy God in vain; for the Lord will not hold him guiltless that taketh his name in vain. Honour thy father and thy mother: that thy days be long upon the land which the Lord thy God giveth thee. Thou shalt not kill. Thou shalt not commit adultery. Thou shalt not steal. Thou shalt not bear false witness against thy neighbour. Thou shalt not covet thy neighbour's wife, nor his man servant, nor his maid servant, nor his ox, nor his ass, nor anything that is thy neighbour's." (Ex. 20: 1-17)

Corporeal Sense

The Lesson Sermon will also include the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health, with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy:

Corporeal sense defrauds and lies: it breaks all the commands of the Mosaic Decalogue to meet its own demands. How then can this sense be the God-given channel to man of divine blessings or understanding?

"The corporeal senses are the only source of evil or error. The material senses originate and support all that is material, untrue, selfish, or debased. They would put soul into soil, life into limbo, and doom all things to decay. We must shun this lie of material sense with the truth of spiritual sense. We must cause the error to cease that brought the belief of sin and death and would efface the pure sense of omnipotence." (Cont. at Foot of Next Col.)

Members of the General Committee of the Chinese Chamber of Commerce, Hong Kong, have elected Mr. J. M. Wong to be vice-Chairman of the Chamber. The vacancy was created through the death of the late Mr. Wong Kwong-tin, when Mr. Li Sing-kui, the former Vice-Chairman, became Chairman. Mr. J. M. Wong's seat on the Executive Committee will be filled by Mr. Ip Lan-chuen, a former Secretary of the Chamber.

"In the Science of Mind, you will soon ascertain that error cannot destroy error. You will also learn that in Science there is no transfer of evil suggestions from one mortal to another, for there is but one Mind, and this ever-present omnipotent Mind is reflected by man and governs the entire universe. You will learn that in Christian Science the first duty is to obey God, to have one mind, and to love another as yourself." (Page 489, 318 and 495).

five years he has been Divisional Inspector of the New Territories, North.

MACAU TENNIS AND BADMINTON PLAYERS ON VIEW

Interesting Card To-day

MIXED DOUBLES TENNIS AT KINGS PARK

An interesting event in to-day's sports programme is the visit to the Colony of Macau's best tennis and badminton players, who will meet Club de Recreio in Men's and Mixed Doubles tennis matches and a badminton encounter.

Macau will be strongly represented in the Mixed Doubles match and a very interesting encounter is anticipated when their first string, comprising J. de Senna Fernandes and Mlle H. de Menezes Ribeiro, clash with A. V. Gosano and Miss Olga Ribeiro, Recreio's No. 1 pair.

Luis A. de Mello and Mlle C. da Silva Vidigal, and Antonio H. de Mello and Mlle. Amalia Nolasco are Macau's second and third strings and will be opposed to F. J. Remedios and Miss Cissy Botelho, and A. V. Remedios and Miss Alice Roza respectively.

To-night's Badminton

Although badminton has only recently been taken up in Macau, a fairly high standard at present exists and some good sport should be witnessed to-night at St. Andrew's Church Hall.

Eduardo B. da Silva, Jose Nolasco, Jose Boyol, Pedro Anselmo Jr., Alvaro de S. da Silva and Henry Noronha will represent the visitors, while the Saints will be represented by R. H. Wong, H. Kew, E. F. Fincher, F. V. Wong, A. S. Bliss and L. E. Kirby.
